

Social and detail-oriented UI/UX designer

Dear Atobi

1. februar 2022

I have spent the last couple of years sharpening my skillset within user research, wireframing, prototyping, UI/UX design and user testing. I am now ready to use my experience to create effective and intuitive experiences for users at Atobi.

Motivation

I would love to help you bring your ambitions to life and make a difference for users of Atobi. I am very motivated to become part of your team and have good experiences working closely with small teams from my many projects at IT University of Copenhagen and my work experience as a freelance frontend developer at ÅBEN A/S.

Professional match

I think that I am a match for the job as a Junior UI/UX designer, because of my user-centric mindset, my eye for visual details and my fundamental and practical understanding of technical tools such as CSS, HTML and JavaScript frameworks (especially React). In me you get a self-driven and ambitious colleague, with confidence in research methods, experience conducting user tests, getting feedback, and making informed design decisions. I have joined several design projects throughout the years of studying and freelancing from mock-ups, prototypes, and final implementation. I am used to working closely with costumers, product owners and software developers on new product developments.

Social

In me you get a friendly colleague with a positive attitude and a strong team spirit. I find joy in working in an agile team and I am used to collaborate with and think like a developer, which means that I can articulate my design ideas for both designers and non-designers.

I hope to hear from you. You can contact me on +45 61 69 47 53 or anne.schjoedt@gmail.com.

Best wishes
